Madison County issues a Travel Advisory & Closes County Offices Early

Wampsville, NY – Due to the winter storm and the expectation of freezing rain Madison County Sheriff Todd Hood has issued a ‘No unnecessary travel’ advisory for Madison County beginning at 3:00 PM until 7:00 AM February 13, 2019. Please note the County will update this advisory if needed.

The ‘No Unnecessary Travel’ advisory does not restrict travel, but urges motorists to avoid driving due to hazardous conditions. If you are on the roads please take extreme caution, give yourself extra time to arrive at your destination and plenty of room to stop when approaching intersections and other vehicles.

Also, Madison County Offices will be closing early today at 3:00 PM due to the deteriorating weather.

The National Weather Service in Binghamton is indicating that freezing rain and sleet will begin in Madison County between 3:00 and 6:00 PM and go through the night. According to NWS Madison County can expect a possible tenth of an inch of ice to coat everything including the roads, trees and power lines.
